1,000 ROAD RANGER EMPLOYEES GIVE 1,000 TURKEYS TO 1,000 IN NEED

This year, the employees of Road Ranger chose to forego their annual Christmas party in the hope that they can spread a little Christmas spirit to those who's Holiday Season may not be as bright.

Throughout its Midwest stores, Road Ranger employees are hearing about and witnessing the difficult times their customers and communities are facing during the current economic downfall. In lieu of the Christmas party, and as part of their Christmas Gift from the company, the employees of Road Ranger have overwhelmingly supported the idea of receiving a turkey to give away to those in need within their community. Each of Road Ranger's 1,000 employees will receive a free butterball turkey to donate or otherwise give to those in need.

"Hopefully a lot of struggling families will benefit from this idea" stated Betty Evans and her staff at the Road Ranger in Dry Ridge, Kentucky. Employee Jahquay Hyles added, "It's good to be blessed with a great job and money in the pocket, but it is an even greater blessing to be able to pass those blessings along to someone else."

And leave it up to Road Ranger employees to come up with other creative ways to further their generosity. Store Manager Mary Roaden (Crescent Springs, Kentucky) and her team have decided to pool their turkeys and hold a raffle for them. "We are going to use the proceeds from the raffle to help buy Christmas [presents] for orphans."

"In a time when people are looking to receive, the employees at Road Ranger, in their true Ranger spirit, have decided to give" commented Jeff Harris, Director of Operations. "I couldn't be more proud of my co-workers."
